Worship of God on the site dates back to 1636 with the present church building being completed in 1772. The building is a well-known landmark, with its 180-foot spire topped by a gilded cross and is fortunate to have two magnificent organs. Amongst the organists of the church was William Harty, whose son was the world famous composer and conductor, Sir Hamilton Harty. Sir Hamilton's ashes are buried at the west door of the church, near a bird bath which is dedicated to his memory and a blue plaque marks his childhood home on Ballynahinch Street. World War I exhibition at Sexton House (at Gateway). For opening hours please contact the church.

Located in the heart of Lisburn and covering 25 acres of mature parkland, Wallace Park is ideal for families with a state-of-the-art children's play area and a variety of tree-lined walkways. The park was given to the people of Lisburn by Sir Richard Wallace. Originally known as 'The People's Park', it was given its current name after Sir Richard's death in 1890.
